

23rd September 2010

SYMPHONY LAUNCHES NEW WEBSITE and APPOINTS NEW FINANCIAL PR ADVISERS

Symphony Environmental Technologies Plc, the specialists in degradable plastics, today launched their much anticipated new website www.d2w.net, a newer more interactive and easy-to-use website which allows not only for valuable information exchange, but provides the user with the chance to engage with the company through online communities. This eye-catching website offers five sections accessed from one central location and is intended to meet the needs of all stakeholders. It will be updated regularly so as to keep everyone informed as the Company develops.

The website offers something for users of all ages and all levels of expertise, ranging from 'Symphony Corporate' which provides an overview of the Group's structure and most recent financial successes, to the newly created 'Kids Corner' introducing Dotty and Danny the 'd₂w' droplets, and "Symphony Shop" where you can buy products online. Being able to follow Symphony on the website as well as on Facebook, Twitter and YouTube gives the user the most up-to-date global news, highlights, and latest share price in sterling and US dollars.

Convenient navigation tools and a comprehensive sitemap afford the ultimate 'online' experience which, when coupled with valuable content, and the chance to engage with other users through Symphony's online forum, creates a website which people will want to visit again and again!

The Company is also pleased to announce the appointment of Bishopsgate Communications Ltd as its Financial Public Relations adviser.

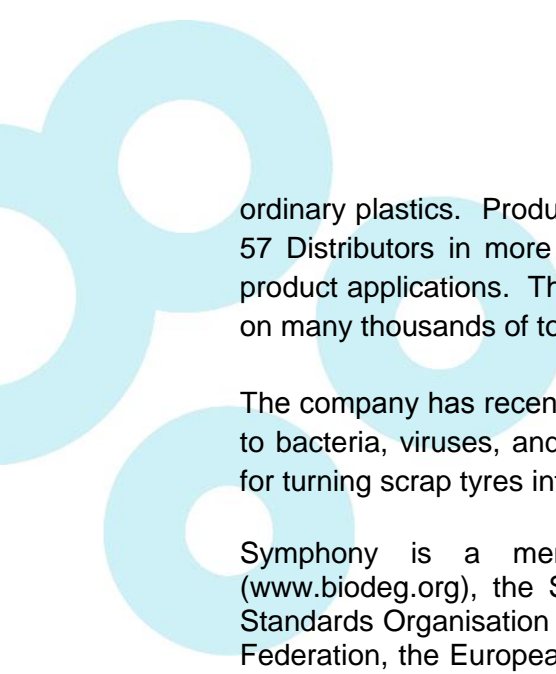

Michael Laurier CEO of Symphony, commented:

"The Directors are committed to providing concise and up to date information on the Company. The launch of the new website and appointment of Bishopsgate Communications comes at a time when the Company's development strategy has delivered a maiden profit, and we are determined to build on that momentum. The Company website and the new Financial PR advisers will play a pivotal role in our future development."

NOTE TO EDITORS:

Symphony has a diverse and growing customer-base and has established itself successfully as an international business.

Symphony has developed a special additive which turns ordinary plastic at the end of its useful life into a material with a completely different molecular structure. At that stage it is no longer a plastic and has become a material which can be bio-assimilated in the open environment in the same way as a leaf. It will degrade automatically, without any human intervention, on land or water without leaving any harmful residues. It can also be recycled and re-used during its useful life, like ordinary plastics. Products made with d₂w plastic technology are now being sold by 57 Distributors in more than 90 countries around the world and in many different product applications. The technology is branded d₂w[®] and appears as a droplet logo on many thousands of tonnes of plastic packaging and other plastic products.

The company has recently introduced “d₂p” – an additive which makes plastic hostile to bacteria, viruses, and fungi – and is continuing to develop innovative technology for turning scrap tyres into valuable commodities.

Symphony is a member of the Oxo-biodegradable Plastics Association (www.biodeg.org), the Society for the Chemical Industry (UK), and the American Standards Organisation (ASTM). Symphony is also a member of the British Plastics Federation, the European Organisation for Packaging & the Environment (Europen), the US Save the Plastic Bag Coalition, and the British Brands Group. Symphony actively participates in the work of the British Standards Institute (BSI), the European Standards Organisation (CEN), and the International Standards Organisation (ISO)

To see d₂w plastic degrading go to: <http://youtube.com/watch?v=i3TGqcpWJTM>

For information about Oxo- biodegradable plastic generally see www.biodeg.org

For further information, contact:

Carteret Communications
0207-828-8598
trense@googlemail.com

Bishopsgate Communications
0207 562 3366
Nick.Rome@bishopsgatecommunications.com

Louise Ling, Marketing Executive at Symphony
0208-207-5900
Louise.ling@d2w.net